Shimer College Alumni Plan National Association. Fall Homecoming

Homecoming, a springtime event in recent years, has been postponed until falls so that plans for a National Alumni Association may be developed. An ad hoc committee, headed by Robert Kryl, '55, is scheduled to meet May 9 in Chicago to discuss the reactivating of the Association and a report will be made at Homecoming in the fall.

The committee will also lay plans for Homecoming activities, suggestions for which include alumni-faculty seminars dealing with current national and world problems, a trail ride and picnic lunch at Glengarry Farms.

Distinguished Alumni awards for the years 1968-69 and 1969-70 will be presented at Homecoming this fall.

Shimer students in discussion during the Chicago project.

Twenty-six Shimer Students Participate In Chicago Project

Twenty-six Shimer students gave up part of their break between semesters to participate in a seminar on problems of the inner city. During this Shimer-in-Chicago project, students temporarily forsook the printed word to hear directly from men and women engaged personally in efforts to meet educational, housing, and other needs of residents of Chicago's ghetto areas. Not content with simply hearing about the problems, students went out to see for themselves, to talk with local people about their activities, and even to participate in some community development programs.

Morning sessions of the seminar were held at Loyola University in downtown Chicago. At each of these one general topic was discussed by public officials and others representing a variety of points of view, both "establishment" and "anti-establishment." For example, at one session a member of the Chicago board of education and a member of the Black Teachers' Caucus confronted each other and exchanged views in a way that clarified some of the issues in education facing the citizens of Chicago. Later the students visited a public school in the heart of Chicago's West Side. They also visited a federally financed child-parent center which is having extraordinary success in preparing deprived and disadvantaged children for school. In this way the students heard about the problems, saw for themselves what some of the conditions actually are, and then observed in action some programs designed to alleviate the problems.

Near the end of the seminar the students were received by the Deputy Mayor of Chicago who gave the city's point of view. Students thus became acquainted with the multifaceted nature of the problems and their intricate relationships with the political and legal structure in Chicago and Illinois.

The Shimer students who participated in this seminar felt that this was an extremely rewarding educational experience. Many of them were appalled by the diversity and the magnitude of the difficulties daily faced by men, women, and children living in ghetto areas. Some participants commented that alleged leaders of minority groups do not always accurately reflect the conditions or the aspirations of those whom they claim to represent. Seeing and hearing for one's self often has an impact that reading alone can not give.

One of the most interesting and significant elements of life in the inner city is the effort made by people living there to help themselves. Visits were made to three very different programs under the general supervision of the Illinois Youth Commission. Each is developed and staffed by local people and represents a different kind of effort to combat the general problem of juvenile delinquency. On Saturday morning students joined in the enthusiastic mass rally of Operation Breadbasket, a significant project of self help and community development. The imaginativeness and the variety of programs developed by the people themselves, with very little outside help, was a source of encouragement to many students.

Shimer College in Oxford, England

The Shimer-in-Oxford-Program allows students to continue in the Shimer curriculum, take courses from an English school and live abroad for a year. The experiences gained from the program are different for each person. There are unlimited advantages from which, under a program providing great freedom, the student may pick and choose.

Many of these advantages derive from the experience of living in another country for a year. To actually live in a foreign place instead of merely visiting there allows for knowing the country much more intimately. The learning of new lifestyles, traditions, and outlooks can be a tremendously broadening experience. There is also an advantage in being set off from one's own country for a while, listening at first hand to the opinions of the rest of the world, reading foreign newspapers and talking with residents of other countries, which provides a perspective not available to those who have not traveled outside the United States.

Oxford alone offers a wealth of opportunities. It attracts many of the outstanding performances in the theatre and music worlds, and it is brimming with history, living and recorded. The presence of the University makes it a mecca for scholars, whom Shimer students may hear through participation in the University lecture series. In addition to some of Britain's most important museums and libraries, the very streets and buildings of the City of Oxford reveal the many centuries of British and European history stored within them. The magnitude, in number and importance, of these cultural opportunities alone would justify the entire Program.

During the year group trips are organized and each student is urged to join. The amount of traveling a student does in addition to these tours depends on how much time and money he wishes to allot to traveling. There are enough special arrangements and discounts available during one's student years to make them an ideal time to travel abroad.

The Shimer in Oxford Program has traditionally been managed so as to provide maximum freedom to the students. They have the advantages of being with a group—group discounts, arrangements made for them by a director, assistance provided at the student's option—but each may make his own arrangements, travel, live and associate apart from the group if he likes. Herein lies another important advantage of this program. Each student brings to his year in England and seeks from it different things than each of his fellow-students. For many, this opportunity to be completely independent is one of the most important aspects of the program. The students become more intimately involved with the society, customs, and conditions of the place in which they live, work, and play for a year when they, as individuals, meet these new people and places and absorb a year of memorable experiences.

Every spring in Mt. Carroll brings that first warm day in March, when for a few hours it suddenly feels like summer on the Shimer campus. This year, the warm weather prompted movement of the College trampoline out on to the quad, where students enjoyed a spring or two.

Scholarships For Fourth Year Students

The Board of Trustees of Shimer College has established two scholarships for fourth year students (one man and one woman) to be known as Dr. Martin Luther King Scholarships.

These scholarships, which will consist of a waiver of tuition up to one-half of the stated charge, will henceforth be awarded annually.

A committee consisting of the Academic Dean, the Dean of the Office of Student Services, and three Faculty members chosen by the Faculty, will annually select by a majority vote two students (one man and one woman) whose academic and social records at Shimer have been outstanding and whose leadership qualities have been constructive.

The names of the two winners for the ensuing year are to be announced early in the second semester of the year preceding.

The award of one or both such scholarships may be withheld for one year in event the committee by majority vote of its five members decides such action is justified.

'20 LOUISE WAGNER BEYER of Chicago is a free lance writer. She and her husband have two children and five grandsons. In a letter to the Alumni office she enclosed a snapshot of Shimer faculty members taken in 1920 at the Founder's Day picnic at Smith's Park. Among those pictured were Miss Morrison, Miss Pollard, Dean McKee's mother, Mrs. Smith and a French teacher nicknamed "Pee-wee."

'25 The childhood home of MARTHA BARNHART HOFFMAN in Danville now houses the Vermilion County Museum. The home was built over a century ago by Dr. William Fithian and was a lodging place of Abraham Lincoln on his trips to Danville. Later, Joseph G. (Uncle Joe)

Cannon lived in the home. Cannon was a long-time congressman from that district and a powerful Speaker of the House. Mrs. Barnhart and her daughter, Martha, were pictured in the Danville newspaper recently handing the deed to the home over to the Museum Society president, following final payment.
